Autodesk Navisworks Simulate 2017 X32 X64. by Cameron Wichek.. Navisworks Manage 2018 X32 X64..Serum and Tamm-Horsfall glycoprotein level in renal diseases. A total of 45 patients with various types of renal diseases were examined, in order to compare the serum and urinary Tamm-Horsfall glycoprotein (THG) levels to determine whether there is any correlation between serum and urinary THG levels. The serum level of THG was within the normal range except in two cases of chronic glomerulonephritis and three cases of transplant glomerulopathy. In contrast, the urinary level of THG was elevated in all the cases of transplant glomerulopathy and in most of the cases of chronic glomerulonephritis. Two cases of chronic glomerulonephritis with nephrotic syndrome showed an elevated urinary THG level. In each case, the serum and urinary THG levels were similar. There was also no significant correlation between the serum or urinary THG levels and the prognosis of the disease. Thus, in patients with chronic glomerulonephritis, the urinary level of THG can be a good marker of active glomerulonephritis, and it can also be used as an adjunct marker of functional nephropathy. However, serum THG was not effective in evaluating the functional status of the glomeruli in any of the conditions studied.
